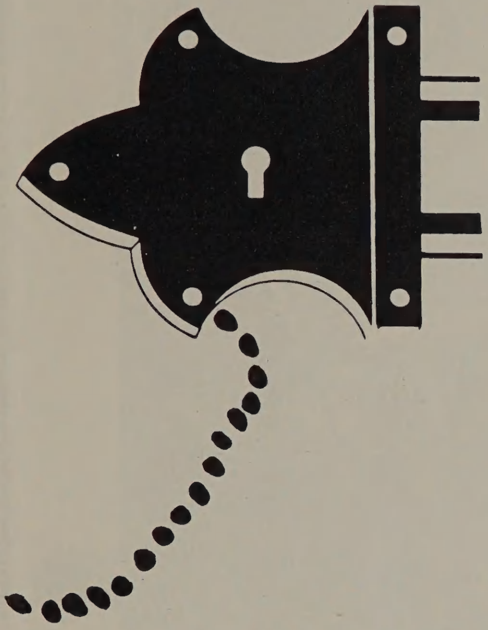
THE FOREWORD



The second year of school life here at Central has ended. Come along with us as we unlock the doors and look at the events that have made this year.

The year has been many things to many people. It has been first impressions, new friends, exams, graduation, and the many little things that make an average day here at Central.

In these pages we have tried to show a synopsis of school life. We have pictured the special events as well as routine--all of which have combined to make this a wonderful and memorable year.

We have used keys as the theme for the Centralian. We would like you to think of your years here at Central as keys-keys to your future. For truly your high school experiences will unlock doors that open new aspects of life--social, academic, spiritual, and physical.

And now, as we emerge from this year at Central, we hope that our experiences of this year enable us to go on to unlock new doors of opportunity in the future.

Dedication

To the group of men who many years ago saw the need for a Christian high school in this area--

To those men who conscientiously labored long and hard to make our school what it is today--

To the men who are presently striving to improve our school for the future--

To those men without whose willing contributions of time and energy there would be no Central Christian High School--

To all of the dedicated Christian men who have served or are serving on the Central Christian School Board of Trustees--we, the annual staff, dedicate this 1963 CENTRALIAN.

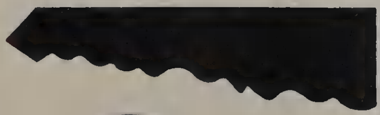
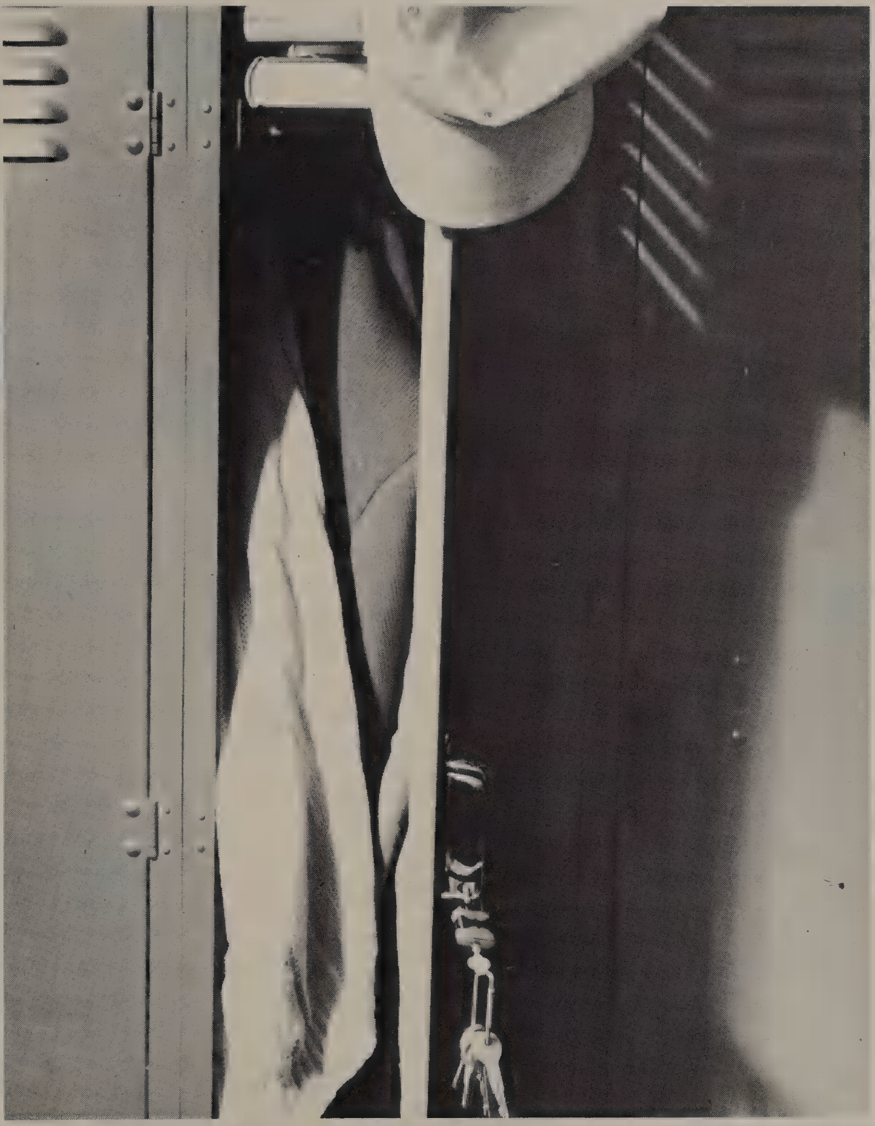
CLASSES





C. L. SWARTZENTRUBER

Dear Students,

One of the distinctive characteristics of man is his ability to learn-- to know, and to share this knowledge with his fellowmen.

It has been our eminent privilege to learn together. This learning experience has been Spirtually embraced by your relationship to Jesus Christ as "the way, the truth and the life." It has been enlarged by this divine dimension significantly involving Christian Faith and Experience.

It is now your sacred and continuing responsibility to dedicate this knowledge--these acquired skills--your Christian Life, and share with others. Let us remember our sacred commitment, "To Know Christ...and to Make Him Known."

Respectfully,

C. L. Swartzentruber
Superintendent

CENTRAL COURIER STAFF

Each month the student body looked forward to the publication of the school paper, the Courier. This year, under the able editorship of Lorene Falb and Mary Helen Weaver, the Courier brought us the latest campus news, sports reports, thought-provoking editorials, annoucements of future events, interesting book reviews, and the personal reactions and opinions of the students to various aspects of school life.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council was a new organization at Central this year. Composed of a representative from each class plus President Fred Nussbaum and Sponsor Mr. Swartzentruber, the Council planned such fundraising events as Work Days and the sale of school ribbons and social functions, such as dress-up day and The Hearts for Christ Banquet. We feel sure that in the future the Student Council will continue to be a vital force in planning social events and in helping to build better rapport between the students and the administration.
